About the courses

Continuing Dr. Chandrakant Sardeshmukh's legacy of traditional Indian music, in particular the sitar. Darshanam has invited two teachers to Pune for sitar workshops to create and expand awareness of this beautiful instrument and the tradition behind it.

Some of his international students will be joining. Learn in an international environment with other students irrespective of being a novice or a professional. With the teachers wide repertoire of compositions as well as knowledge of traditional Indian music, everyone from a child to an adult will enjoy these workshops.

Teachers

Carrying the legacy of her late father and brother, well known Vichitra Veena players Dr. Lalmani Mishra, and Dr. Gopal Mishra, and a renowned Sitar, Vichitra Veena and Jaltarang player herself, Dr. Ragini Trivedi, a god gifted musician, close associate and soul sister of Dr. Chandrakant, will teach the Advanced Course

Dr. Trivedi is teacher at a post graduate Govt. college in Indore and helps in making educational movies as a subject expert. She is the member of the boards of several committees, performs on radio and stage, guides students of jal tarang under the Gurukul scheme, writes for magazines, journals as well for websites on music. She has been working on partially completed works by her father and brother besides her own projects.

Dr. Santosh Pathak is an Assistant Professor (Instrumental) with M.A. (Music) and Ph.D.in Bagheti Yewaro Bhojpuri lok geeto ka Tulnatmak Adhyayan (about North Indian Music) in Banashtali University, Jaipur. He will be coming from Jaipur and has set aside a few days from his teaching schedule. He is a student of Dr. Ragini Trivedi.

Darshanam is a voluntary organization that has been promoting Ayurved and traditional Indian Music in Japan and Australia since 1990. One of the main aims of Darshanam is to encourage young people to learn and practice Ayurved as well as to experience and perform traditional Indian music This can be achieved by organizing various events globally for this purpose.
